Project activity
Collaborative project: BARI/CIMMYT/ACIAR/CSIR O-Australia	I am engaged with three international collaborative projects as a research scientist. The activity of these projects are as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Since 2013, I have been working with ACIAR-CIMMYT funded 'Sustainable Resilient Farming System Intensification (SRFSI)' project. This project is working with conservation agricultural in Eastern Gangetic region of India, Bangladesh and Nepal. In, Bangladesh, it is working in North-Western part (Rangpur, Dinajpur and Rajshahi region) of Bangladesh.
Collaborative project BAU/IWM/BARI/CSIRO- Australia	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2. Title: Sustaining groundwater irrigation for food security in the northwest region of Bangladesh. BARI Component (Agro-environmental Remote Sensing and Modeling) of SDIP Phase II – Sustaining groundwater irrigation for food security in the Northwest Region of Bangladesh' funded by CSIRO, Australia, (in collaboration with Bangladesh Agricultural University, Institute of Water Modeling and Bangladesh Agricultural Research Institute). I am working in the project as a co-investigator. Objectives of the project- Assess and validate the long-term (1980s to date) water use of dry season irrigation for northwest Bangladesh using remote sensing and statistical techniques: 1. Assess spatiotemporal dynamics of land cover and land use, 2. Assess spatiotemporal dynamics of cropping systems (type, extent).

Collaborative research Project with USAID/ CIMMYT/WRC-BARI	3. This is CIMMYT/USDA funded small project entitled: Response of newly evolved wheat varieties to sowing dates . The aim of the project is to examine the impact of inter- and intra- seasonal temperature variation on wheat performance stability and also to identify suitable wheat genotypes for appropriate sowing dates considering agronomic performance, yield response, disease incidence, etc. Updated data on yield decline rates with different varieties as a function of sowing date. This trial will also permit advanced G × E × M analysis. This information will help to plan new research program for developing wheat varieties, which are able to produce adequate and stable yield under varying climatic conditions with minimum or no disease infection.
Collaborative research Project with University of Queensland/ CSIRO-Australia	4. I am also working with another collaborative research on “ Evaluation of Conservation Agriculture Practices on Irrigation and Nitrogen Use Efficiency of Rice-Wheat-Mungbean Crop Rotation ” in collaboration with WRC-BARI, CSIRO-Australia, University of Queensland-Australia, ACIAR-Australia and CIMMYT-Bangladesh. The objectives of the study is to evaluate the effects of conservation agriculture practices on irrigation and fertilizer specially nitrogen requirements of the system, whether cropping system intensification from a rice-wheat system to a rice-wheat-mungbean system has any impact on systems yield and economic return; and need to assess both short and long-term impacts on crop and soil productivity of these cropping systems for sustainability issues.
Collaborative research Project with University of Queensland/ CSIRO-Australia	5. Identifying Eastern Gangetic Plains Soils Constraints (Project no. crop/2018/2010)
